

WILL Arnett

men we love

WHY WE LOVE HIM The man can wear a suit. He might be more comfortable in a hockey jersey, but at a comedy fundraiser last spring to benefit Toronto East General Hospital, Will Arnett looked downright dashing. In his hometown with his wife, comedian Amy Poehler, on his arm, Arnett was supporting the hospital where his father was once chairman of the board.

WHY HE LOVES PLAYING DAD Best known as Gob Bluth on the award-winning Arrested Development, Arnett has cracked us up on 30 Rock and Parks and Recreation. But recently, the 42-year-old has taken on a role a little closer to reality. On Up All Night, Arnett stars as a stay-at-home dad who, with his career-focused wife (played by Christina Applegate), tries to overcome the clichés of parenthood. “I’m definitely most like the character I’m playing now,” he says. “If I were like any other character, I’d be insane. Legitimately insane.” Are his parenting skills similar to those of his TV role? “I think I’m stricter.” So how does he keep his toddlers, Archibald and Abel, in line? “I just try to really level with them. Even when they were babies,” he says with a familiar deadpan look.

WHO HE LOVES “I watch so much hockey; I’m a huge Leafs fan,” he confesses. Arnett has shown his Leaf love by sporting Toronto’s blue jersey on Up All Night.

WHAT HE LOVES ABOUT OLDER WOMEN “Maturity is where it’s at. You want a woman who has some wisdom.” Yet when a reporter calls out for him to do his signature chicken dance, he complies — proving that while the actor can appreciate maturity, he doesn’t necessarily have too much himself. — KATE DALEY foot files

What your shoes say about you

What can strangers tell about you from your footwear? Quite a bit. According to recent research, accurate predictions can be made about your personality based solely (heh) on your shoes. — TERRI FAVRO

THINKS HIGHLY OF HERSELF

“TOO MUCH INFORMATION” TYPE

NEVER GOT OVER WANTING TO BE WONDER WOMAN

WEARS SPANX TO BED

READ FIFTY SHADES OF GREY DISGUISED AS SENSE & SENSIBILITY

JUST WANTS TO HAVE FUN

DRESSES LIKE HOLLY HOBBIE ON DATE NIGHT

OVERPREPARED